

Hi there!

I'm a software developer who found his true passion in programming. Curious as to how programs work, I started teaching myself how to code, before eventually attending a computer programming bootcamp to accelerate and further expand my learning capacity. I enjoy using my creative and logical problem-solving skills to innovate and solve complex problems when writing code. In my spare time, I like to master the classical pieces of Bach and Chopin on piano, as well as study the wonders of astronomy.
